Profile

I'm a Computer Engineering student at Kathmandu University with a genuine passion for building software that's both powerful and easy to use. I work with C++, C, and Python, and enjoy developing with Qt, React, and Node.js. I care about getting the details right — from the logic under the hood to the experience on the screen. I'm early in my journey, but deeply committed to growing into an engineer who builds things that truly make a difference.
